Nursery Homework and News

Friday 17th June 2022

Dear Parents and Carers,

This week, we have continued our Supertato themed learning. We started the week by discovering that over the weekend Evil Pea had been up to mischief and had frozen some of the Super Veggies that feature in the story book! However, we can happily report that we have successfully investigated how to unfreeze them. We have also turned ourselves into superheroes and have been using our measuring skills to make belts, capes or masks that fitted us without falling off. Later in the week, Evil Pea was on the loose again, this time he had brought some friends! We decide that we had to hunt them down and count how many we could find, to help us we made our own number line using evil peas. By the end of the week, we had had enough of Evil Pea's antics and decided to design and make a trap. We will catch Evil Pea!

Next week, we will continue our Supertato themed learning for a short while before reading Norman the Slug with the Silly Shell, another of Sue Hendra fabulous books. Which links nicely to the interest the children have shown in minibeasts, so we will hope to find out the difference between slugs and snails and we may even be making our own doughnuts – yummy!

We have had such fun reading the den building kits that many Nursery families have contributed to this year. There is still some availability for you to borrow the den kit, if you would like to sign up please talk to the Nursery adult supervising the door at drop off. It really is a lovely way to spend time together as a family. Also the children love to look at the Den Book when it is in school to see the huge variety of dens that have been made at home.

The weather has been hot this week and there are many children still wearing winter vests under their school uniform. When it is forecasted to be hot we advise you to dress your child in less layers and sun cream should be applied before your child arrives at school. If your child attends school all day and you would like sun cream re-applied before the start of the afternoon session please send in some sun cream in a named bottle and we will support your child to apply their own cream during lunchtime.

We have of course this week been talking about the men in our lives and why we love them. Nursery would like to say "thank you" to all the special men in their lives and we hope you enjoy the cards that they have made you!

Please remember we are still completing our celebration book – please send in any photographs of any special days you celebrate as a family as we would love to include them in our book.

Have a fantastic weekend.

Yours sincerely
The Nursery Team
